How the creatures in contemporary zombie films came to be called zombies is not fully clear. The film Night of the Living Dead made no spoken reference to its undead antagonists as 'zombies', describing them instead as ghouls (though ghouls, which derive from Arabic folklore, are demons, not undead). Although George Romero used the term ghoul in his original scripts, in later interviews he used the term zombie.

Sam Phillips
Black Sky - Martinis & Bikinis
(1994)

The trees are listening each time a missile's made
They hide three mystics the earth sends from her grave
To tell us the future has been stolen away
By diggers, drillers and sellers
But we won't stop 'till we're under a black sky

...

He took my picture in the cemetery sun
My body was tempted to crumble into one
Reunion of dust until creation's done
Returning ashes to ashes
We won't stop 'till we're underneath a black sky

The commerce the intrigue
Self-slaughtered souls cry out to dead poor men
For a drink at the water hole
But their tongues will burn dry
As the day they were sold for
Forests raped into deserts

The billboard features a dark, misty background. On the left, a cupid figure with a bow and arrow is shown. On the right, a fox is depicted with a red heart on its chest and a red trail behind it. Several black arrows are scattered around the scene. A yellow sticky note with contact information is placed over the cupid. A QR code is located in the bottom left corner, and the hashtag #vibujaht is in the bottom right.
